Motti Finkelstein

FORMER CIO, INTEL · CIO HALL OF FAME 2026

Business-First. People-First. Built for the AI Era.

ABOUT MOTTI

Motti Finkelstein is the former Corporate Vice President and Chief Information Officer of Intel, where his organization delivered more than $4 billion in enterprise business value. Before Intel he was CTO for Global Capital Markets at BMO and spent two decades in senior technology leadership at Citi.

A 2026 CIO Hall of Fame inductee, he now advises boards, investors and enterprise technology startups, and speaks to CIOs and directors on turning AI ambition into business results. His forthcoming book is The Moat Was Never the Model.

SIGNATURE TOPICS

01 The Moat Was Never the Model
As intelligence becomes abundant, judgment becomes scarce. Where lasting differentiation comes from in the agentic economy, and what it means for the CIO.

02 Follow the Money
How CIOs should talk to the CFO about AI: a value vocabulary of velocity, productivity and savings that turns pilots into funded programs.

03 Build, Buy or Orchestrate
Why build-versus-buy is no longer a one-time procurement call but a continuous discipline of managing optionality in the AI era.

04 Technology Risk in the Boardroom
What every board member must know about cyber, resilience and technology risk, and the questions directors should be asking.
